

Name: _____

Graphic Organizer for Essay Prompt 3

3) Every generation of Alaskans faces pressing problems that must be solved before the people can move forward. During territorial days, Alaska faced problems with resource management and effective government. What pressing issues do you see in Alaska today that must be solved in order for the people of the state to advance in a positive direction. What lessons can we learn from Alaska's experience with the Constitutional Convention and Statehood that could help us meet present day challenges. Write a two-page, double-spaced essay on this topic. Include at least three examples from the Constitutional Convention and the drive for Statehood to support your opinions.

Introduction:

What are two of Alaska's most pressing problems in your opinion?

What pressing problems did Alaska face during territorial days?

What kind of unique approach(es) did Alaskans take to solve these problems? Explain.

Conclusion: What can we learn about the tactics and methods used by advocates of the Alaska Constitution and Statehood to help guide us in solving Alaska's present day problems?